

SEVERE ASTHMA: WE'RE WORKING TO GIVE YOU MORE FREEDOM BETWEEN TREATMENTS

The NIMBLE Study is looking at a possible new medicine (study drug) for people with eosinophilic asthma (a type of severe asthma).

The study will look at how safe the study drug is and whether it works for adults and adolescents with eosinophilic asthma.

You or someone you care for may be able to take part if you/they:

- are at least 12 years of age
- have severe asthma that has been controlled with mepolizumab or benralizumab for at least 12 months.
